GIVING BACK TO THE CLINICS

“The real-life, practical training, and interpersonal skills that develop as a result of dealing with real clients with real problems - when it's not your grade on the line, it's their lives on the line - that was what really made me into a lawyer who cares about clients. It's not about the bottom line or some billing rate,” said Dunlap. “It gave me the drive to go out and represent people instead of corporations.”

Andrew W. Dunlap, '11
Partner, Josephson Dunlap, LLP
Houston, TX

For Andrew Dunlap, '11, some of his most powerful experiences at MSU Law came from his time in the Immigration and Rental Housing Clinics.

Dunlap's work in the clinics inspired him to donate to MSU Law's Annual Fund, supporting educational opportunities for future Spartan lawyers. Working in the clinics exposed Dunlap to high-stakes legal situations that, as a student, he had never encountered before. The clinics, said Dunlap, “make better lawyers.”
