

Time Out

Photography Exhibition by Trisha R. Wilcox

March 5 through late May 2013

Many can snap a pretty picture. Trisha Wilcox's photographs take us much further than the feelings evoked from beauty. Her work brings us to linger for a while in a state of transition between thought and emotion—a Time Out for solitude.

Meet, Greet, and Support

Tuesday, March 12, 2013

MSU Law, Castle Board Room

4:30 to 6:00 p.m.

Public Welcome

Two years ago this March, Trisha's 12-year-old daughter, Mackenzie, was diagnosed with Type 1 Diabetes. The disease requires that Mackenzie prick her finger to check her blood glucose levels as many as 10 times a day, count all carbohydrates she consumes, and dose with insulin as needed. The only way to receive insulin currently is by injection, so Mackenzie must wear a pump with a catheter under her skin 24 hours a day, seven days a week. A new pump site must be inserted with a needle every three days.

This disease has altered mother and daughter's lives forever. As you can imagine, Trisha and Mackenzie are focused and dedicated to helping find a cure for this horrific lifelong illness. We hope you can help by donating to one of the organizations featured at the Meet and Greet donation table. Trisha, Mackenzie, MSU College of Law, and the sponsoring student organizations thank you for your generosity and support.

Sponsors:

Michigan State University College of Law Journal of Medicine and Law

Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine Emergency Medicine Club

James Madison College

The meet and greet food selections are compliments of Troppo as part of the restaurant's support for finding a cure for diabetes.